In your community

It may not have been the Oscars, but there was still a lot of buzz about Northwestel's first-ever Community Cable 9 Video Contest. The competition ran this summer and on October 29th, Yukoners had the opportunity to dust off their tuxedos and gowns (or their "Yukon formal" garb) for the presentation of prizes at an awards ceremony at the Old Fire Hall in Whitehorse. Eleven video producers submitted ten short videos for consideration in the competition, which were shown on Community Cable 9 in Whitehorse for several weeks this fall. The five winners were selected after scoring by a panel of expert judges and TV audience voting.

"Broadcasting the entries on Community Cable 9 was a wonderful way to use our community channel to profile northern video producers and their work," said Curtis Shaw, Northwestel Vice President of Consumer Markets, who helped present the awards. "We hope to see more work from all these producers in the future."

Top honours went to Edward Westerhuis, who produced Oil Monster from the Deep. He won the grand prize of a $2500.00 MacBook Pro gift certificate from Meadia Solutions. Four runners-up each received a $250.00 gift certificate to The Source. They were The Best of Dawson Hockey by Troy Suzuki, Second Run by Sid Noormohamed, Fitting It In by Lee Randell and Lucky Guy by Allen Mark and Sam Finton. The prizes were partially sponsored by Meadia Solutions and The Source.

A similar contest is being planned for Yellowknife.
